APPENDIX A

4780. Avatāravādāvalī by Puruṣottamadāsa

In the thirteenth section of the Avatāravādāvalī, a work based on the Vallabhasampradāya, Puruṣottamadāsa raises the question whether Śrīmadbhāgavata-Purāṇa should be included in the list of eighteen Mahāpurāṇa-s or treated as an independent work. This is known from the reference found in the first Skandha of the Bhāgavata-Purāṇa to two conversations—the one between Vyāsa and Nārada, and the other between Skandha and Matsya. According to the former conversation, Vyāsa not being satisfied with the writing of the Bhārata, composed the Bhāgavata-Purāṇa; and, according to the latter, Vyāsa wrote the Bhārata only after composing the eighteen Purāṇa-s. The author's conclusion seems to be that the Śrīmadbhāgavata is one of the eighteen Purāṇa-s written by Vyāsa, and it should be differentiated from the Devībhāgavata.

इति विश्वेश्वरी समाप्तः । शुभमस्तु । ग्रन्थसंख्या ६५०

This work deals with the rules regarding Saṁnyāsa-āśrama. The name of the author is given as Ānandaśrama, pupil of Nṛsiṁhāśrama in the second verse. But चिदानन्दाश्रमं गुरु in place of नृसिंहाश्रमं गुरु in the first stanza, and चिदानन्दाश्रमं नत्वा वक्ष्येहमच्युताश्रमः in place of नृसिंहाश्रमं नत्वा वक्ष्येहं आनन्दाश्रमः in the second verse are given as alternate readings in the marginal note. According to this Acyutaśrama, disciple of Cidānandaśrama is the author. This work is called Saṁnyāsidharmasaṅgraha in Verse 3. One Viśveśvarasarasvatī is known to be the author of Yatidharma-samuccaya. It is therefore possible that the present work Viśveśvari is based on Yatidharmasamuccaya of Viśeśvara. History of Dharmaśāstra Vol. I Page 825 mentions Acyutaśrama, pupil of Cidānandaśrama, as the author of Viśveśvari-yapaddhiti or Yatidharma-saṅgraha.

6643. Tārābhaktisudhāṇava by Narasiṁhaṭhakkura

The worship of Tārā who is considered to be the supreme deity, and the wonderful powers which the worshipper would acquire by Her adoration, are explained in this work in great detail with quotations drawn from several Tantra works. A manuscript under the same title and by the same author is noticed in the Descriptive catalogue of the Sanskrit manuscripts, Vol 8, part I of the Royal Asiatic Society of Bengal under No. 6324. But the two works are different although the subject dealt with appears to be the same.

6750. Niruttaralantram

This work represents the conversation between Śiva and Devī in which the former, answering the questions of the latter, explains in detail the procedure to be adopted in Tāntrika worship which includes Kavaca, Puraścaraṇa, Nivedana, Abhiṣeka, etc. besides dealing with such matters as the accomplishment of desires and the attainment of perfection.

This work is also known as Āryā or Bodhāryā. The printed edition (Poona Ed.) contains 154 verses. The last verse in this edition corresponds to the 155th verse in this manuscript but the reading is different at the end of the verse. The last verse of the manuscript i.e. 156th verse-is not found in the printed edition.

8253. Caramopāyanirṇayaḥ

According to the Śrīvaiṣṇava tradition, Prapatti or complete surrender to Lord is considered to be the means for self-emancipation. In this work the author holds the view that service and devotion to Rāmānujācārya is the means for attaining salvation. In support of this view he quotes instances from the works of various Ācāryas and cites Svapnavṛttāntas or dreams. This work is different from the manuscript found in Adyar Library described under serial No. 206 in the Descriptive Catalogue Vol. 10.
